Finding of Uranium Deposit Is Big Talk in Hardin County

Leases Held By Four Groups In Hicks Area

First Discovery Of Radioactive Deposits Last August

By TIMOTHEUS T.

One day last August a man who knows a bit about mining was riding along a gravel road in the Hicks Dome area of Hardin county.

This man, J. Willis Crider of Marion, Ky., head of the Crider Fluorspar Co. of Marion, had a Scintillator in his car with him. The Scintillator is a device that records radioactivity and is much more sensitive than a Geiger counter.

And sensitive the instrument got as the car approached the Hicks Dome area. Thoughts of uranium ore deposits rushed through the mind of the man at the wheel.

Mr. Crider parked his car and made his way up and down the area, getting a most excellent response from the instrument he carried in his hand.

News Breaks This Week

Mr. Crider, who found the first radioactive deposits in Kentucky in the Katawa Springs area, where so far nothing has been done about getting out the ore, did not rush around telling everybody what he had discovered. Instead, he went back to his home and began to survey just what he had found.

On January 10 he sent young George Edward Winn and W. H. Beshears into the area to make some further tests and with a group of men from his town began a quiet job of finding just what they wanted to lease.

The news that big uranium deposits lay in the Hicks Dome area broke early this week and that is the big talk now in Hardin county. Whether it turns out to be a bonanza or not remains to be seen but the indications point that way to the layman.

Leases Held By Three Groups

This writer ran into ten of the Marion, Kentucky, lease holders at Hicks Dome yesterday afternoon, and made a tour of part of their leased holdings with them.

To begin with, they told me, as far as they knew there were only three groups that had leases.

J. Willis Crider heads one group. He and his three partners, Lyle Winn, George Edward Winn and W. H. Beshears, were down there yesterday.

The second group consists of F. W. Watson, Ken Getman, Boyce Moodie, Eugene Cruce, Allen Crider, Cecil Craighead and Art Johnson. All, from Marion, Ky., except Johnson, were there yesterday, too. Johnson, however, is a fluorspar man from Rosiclare.

The third group is Reynolds and Chennault of Louisville, Ky., the men stated. The Crider group has under lease 400 acres, the Watson group 577 acres and Reynolds-Chennault 71 acres, they told me. Reynolds, they said, is one of the Reynolds.

IPAC to Cut General Relief Aid 10 Per Cent in March

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Public Aid Commission will cut state general relief aid 10 per cent in March.

The state allots money for general relief in Chicago and 102 of the 1,557 downstate relief cities. Other local welfare offices meet their own relief needs without state aid.

The cut in March aid will not affect payments under the old age, blind, disability and dependent children aid programs.

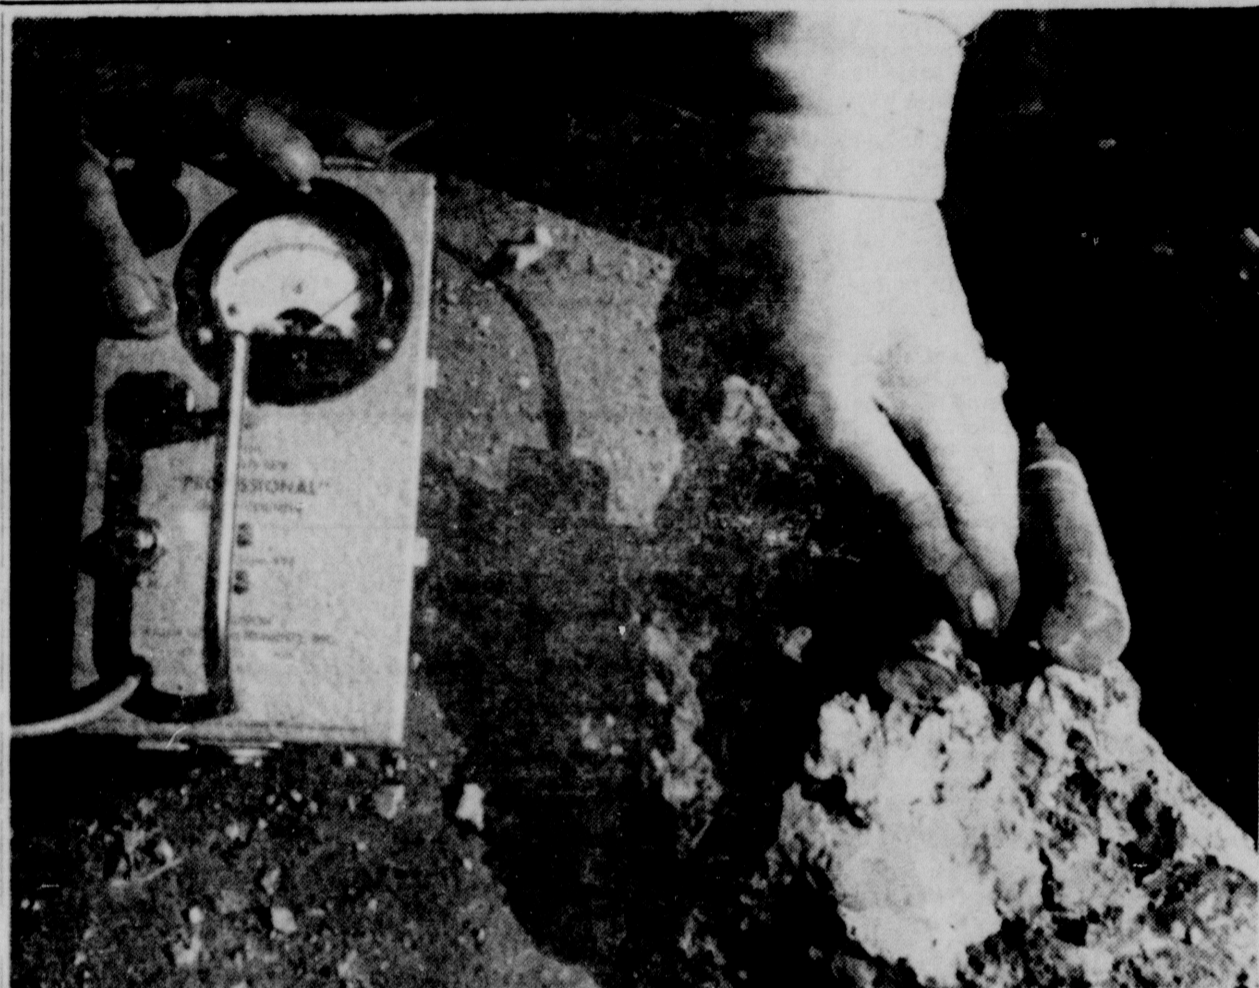

The IPAC said its funds were short and the reduction in March payments was necessary because some local relief authorities had failed to estimate area needs accurately.

The commission called for an all-out drive to find jobs for some 10,000 "employable cases" among the 31,500 persons now on relief.

It said 6,700 of these employable persons were in Chicago.

Vote-Stealing Charges Hurlled By Merriam

CHICAGO — Young Ald. Robert E. Merriam's campaign to kick the Chicago Democratic organization out of the mayor's office was off to a tempestuous start today.

Merriam, who won the GOP mayoralty nomination in a breeze Tuesday, fired his opening gun Thursday with charges of Democratic vote-stealing in a West Side ward.

In a dramatic scene in the City Council chamber, Merriam said he had an affidavit and pictures to prove that a man known as "Short Pencil" charged Democratic primary ballots marked for Mayor Martin H. Kennelly.

Merriam charged that "Short Pencil" marked the ballots for the victorious organization-backed candidate, Richard J. Daley.

He said he had evidence of other frauds and called for a full scale investigation of the Democratic primary. State's Atty. John G. Knecht, a Democrat, turned over the case to the Board of Election Commissioners for "such investigation that the law requires."

Meanwhile, Daley's two chief primary opponents refused to say whether they will support him, and the president of the Chicago Civil Service Commission resigned.

Both Kennelly and third-runner Benjamin S. Adamowski kept their own counsel on whether they would stay with their party's candidate or perhaps join the Merriam forces.

The resignation from the Civil Service Commission of Stephen E. Hurley was hailed as "Victory No. 1" by at least one Democratic organization wheel horse.

Hurley, a Kennelly appointee, roused politicians' anger during his 7½ years in office as he replaced 12,000 political appointees with civil service workers.

An old line Democrat, Ald. Mathias (Paddy) Bauler, danced a jig when he heard that Hurley was leaving. "Chicago isn't ready for reform yet," he said.

The complaint, which names Sam Martin and Nellie Martin, his wife, the defendants, says that the plaintiff owned the coal, oil and all mineral rights under 20.4 acres of ground in Section 35 of Carrier Mills township.

It says that Martin, who owned the surface rights, on Feb. 5, 1955, asked her to execute a quit claim deed of surface rights to him so that the surface rights could be abstracted to convey a good title to the Sahara Coal Co.

It says that Mrs. Thompson did not read the deed of conveyance and did not know the contents of the deed, but that several days afterward she learned she had signed a quit claim deed of all the plaintiff's interest in and to the coal, oil, gas and minerals underlying the surface.

The plaintiff also says that Mrs. Thompson did not receive any consideration for signing the deed.

TVA Asks AFL To Intervene in Plant Dispute

PADUCAH, Ky. — The AFL Tennessee Valley Trades and Labor Council today studied a Tennessee Valley Authority request to help seek a settlement of a strike that has halted construction on the partly completed TVA Shawnee steam plant since Monday.

Officials at the TVA plant asked the council to intervene in an attempt to halt the walkout, which began when members of Pipefitters Local 184 protested TVA violated its own layoff procedure in firing four men.

The strike idled nearly 1,100 construction workers but did not affect operation of the first eight completed power generating units of the 215-million-dollar 10-unit plant. More than 300 men are employed in the operation department.

A company spokesman said today the company will retain employees on the basis of ability, despite union demands that seniority be observed. Union officials charged TVA laid off four pipefitter foremen last week and retained four other foremen with less seniority because they had specialized training.

Some 16 maintenance personnel crossed the picket line Wednesday, but other workers stayed at home.

The plant's last two generating units, which will furnish power to the nearby atomic energy plant, are scheduled for completion late this year.

The plant is being built by TVA's own building division and no private contractor is involved.

Asks Court to Nullify Quit Claim Deed

Mrs. Della Thompson, 74, Harrisburg, seeks court nullification of a quit claim deed executed by her, in a complaint on file in the circuit clerk's office.

Her complaint, filed for her by Atty. Lester Lightfoot, contends she did not know what she was signing when she signed a quit claim deed conveying mineral rights to Sam Martin.

The complaint, which names Sam Martin and Nellie Martin, his wife, the defendants, says that the plaintiff owned the coal, oil and all mineral rights under 20.4 acres of ground in Section 35 of Carrier Mills township.

It says that Martin, who owned the surface rights, on Feb. 5, 1955, asked her to execute a quit claim deed of surface rights to him so that the surface rights could be abstracted to convey a good title to the Sahara Coal Co.

It says that Mrs. Thompson did not read the deed of conveyance and did not know the contents of the deed, but that several days afterward she learned she had signed a quit claim deed of all the plaintiff's interest in and to the coal, oil, gas and minerals underlying the surface.

The plaintiff also says that Mrs. Thompson did not receive any consideration for signing the deed.

U. S., British, Australian Foreign Ministers Seek to Patch Up Rift Over Formosa

BANGKOK, Thailand — Foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and Australia met privately here tonight in an effort to patch up the widening rift between Washington and London over the Formosa crisis.

The three got together after the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization had agreed to set up a permanent SEATO headquarters in Bangkok and had created three subcommittees to deal with Communist subversion and military and economic problems.

Formosa, which is outside the defense area of SEATO but very much in the thinking of the delegates—received a going over at a dinner given by U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. His guests were Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Australia's Minister of External Affairs R. G. Casey.

Authoritative sources said Dulles made it clear that the United States is determined to fight for Formosa and that Red China will be in for a big surprise, and a bloody nose, if it thinks otherwise.

Tells Britain's Position

Eden, these sources said, told Dulles the United States could count on Britain's help if war developed.

Casey was pictured as urging Eden to "take as strong a position as possible" to deter further Communist aggression.

The eight-nation conference voted today to assign permanent representatives to the new headquarters here, giving each the rank of ambassador.

The eight SEATO countries are the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand and the Philippines.

The SEATO nations named three subcommittees to study economic and military matters and to map campaigns against Communist subversion. These subcommittees, at insistence of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, will be allowed to meet anywhere they choose.

Dulles was believed to have made a big impression on the SEATO powers with his statement that the United States had greater striking power in the Pacific now to counter Communist aggression than it had at the height of the war against Japan.

He explained this was taking into account the development of new weapons, including atom bombs.

State to Appeal Ruling 'Tough' Driver's License Law is Illegal

Judge Says Power to Revoke Licenses By Carpenter Invalid

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — The state today started work on an appeal of Circuit Judge William C. Radloff's ruling that the 1953 "tough" driver's license law is unconstitutional.

Radloff ruled Wednesday that the main provisions of the law giving the secretary of state power to revoke and suspend driving privileges is invalid.

Radloff dismissed the indictment against Bloomington Police Magistrate Walter J. Reiner, who was charged with failing to submit traffic conviction reports to the secretary under the law.

Radloff said this requirement for reports of convictions by the courts was also unconstitutional. The secretary of state based his revocations and suspensions on the court reports.

Radloff said the 1953 law was an unconstitutional delegation of authority.

CARPENTIER REVOKES

306 MORE LICENSES
SPRINGFIELD — Secretary of State Charles Carpenter today announced revocation of 306 and suspension of 9 driver's licenses, chauffeurs licenses and driving privileges.

In 1955 there have been 851 revocations and 26 suspensions to date. Of the latest actions, 217 revocations resulted from driving while intoxicated.

thority—giving judicial powers to an administrative officer and requiring administrative duties of the judiciary.

Ask Court Writ
Illinois Atty. Gen. Latham Castle said he will petition the Illinois Supreme Court for a writ of error on Radloff's decision, presenting the petition before the court convenes March 14. He directed McLean County State's Atty. Clifford N. Collidge to prepare the lower court record for the appeal.

The secretary of state has revoked 8,330 driver's and chauffeur's licenses and permits, suspended 569 and cancelled 2,568 since the law became effective July 1, 1953.

The court decision had no effect on these suspensions and revocations. Secretary of State Charles F. Carpenter said "upon the advice of the attorney general I shall continue to enforce the driver's license law" since the court had not enjoined his office from enforcing the law.

William Colvin, in charge of the driver's license division under Carpenter, said:

"It is a very serious affair. If this decision is upheld there is no way a driver can be taken off the highway on account of his record and no way the secretary can re-

Demo Leaders Confident Bill Will Pass

Expect Showdown Friday After Test Vote Today

By United Press

Seven House Democrats lined up today with Republican foes of the Democratic $20-per-person tax cut. The Democratic leadership remained confident of victory, however, on the final vote.

The showdown on the proposed tax cut will come Friday, possibly preceded by a test vote late today.

The defeating Democrats, all from Virginia, said they would vote against the Democratic tax cut for the same reason they voted against a Republican tax cut last year.

They said in a statement that both constituted "fiscal irresponsibility in view of our continuing deficit spending and mounting federal debt." President Eisenhower Wednesday called the Democratic plan the height of fiscal irresponsibility.

House Republicans meanwhile vowed opposition to the $20 cut at a GOP caucus in which only "two or three" refused to take the pledge. This showing prompted House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. to predict defeat for the cut.

Other congressional news:
Gardner: Trevor Gardner told senators he has a "tremendous admiration" for Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer but would not consult or employ him as long as he lacks security clearance.

Gardner is President Eisenhower's nominee to the post of assistant air secretary for research. The Senate Armed Services committee approved his nomination last August but Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland blocked it after some senators raised questions about Gardner's friendship with Oppenheimer.

Harlan: The Senate Judiciary committee held a closed hearing on the nomination of John Marshall Harlan to be a Supreme Court justice. It heard a complaint that Harlan mistreated a witness while he was counsel of the New York Crime Commission in 1951. The complaint was made by former chairman of the crime commission.

Taxes: The House worked toward a showdown on the proposed tax cut, which Mr. Eisenhower said would increase the federal deficit and bring on inflation.

The tax cut proposal produced the angriest political squabble yet between President Eisenhower and the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) hotly denied the President's charge that the Democrats were being irresponsible in pushing the tax reduction. He said the administration gave tax relief last year to stockholders and corporations but "didn't give the little folks anything."

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Len Hall May Get General Aniline Legal Bonanza; Republicans Knew Ike Wouldn't Go For Long Campaign In '56; Dictator Franco Wants U. S. To Pay For Glamorized Locomotives.

WASHINGTON. — Big, bluff, wise-cracking Len Hall, who rode herd on the Republican committee without rubbing any fur the wrong way last week, may not be in that spot when the campaign gets going in '56.

Though Ike likes Len, he feels happier with Jim Murphy, head of the Citizens for Eisenhower committee; so Len Hall may get one of the prize plums of government, the law business of General Aniline and Film. This is the big German company seized and operated by the U. S. government. The job pays about $75,000.

For a time it looked as if ex-Gov. Tom Dewey was slated to get General Aniline legal business. Word came to the Justice Department from Dewey several months ago that his old friend, Attorney General Brownell, should clean all Democratic holdovers out of General Aniline. That was why Jack Frye, a Republican appointed by Truman, was ousted as president. Dewey apparently was not looking for legal business for himself, however, but for an easy way by which Len Hall might retire from the Republican National committee.

Note — Top jobs in American-seized foreign companies have usually been political. Louis Johnson, former Secretary of Defense, was former counsel for General Aniline. Frye, retiring president, is an old friend of former Attorney General Tom Clark who got him the General Aniline job when Frye exited from Trans World Airlines.

BLITZ CAMPAIGN
Strategy behind the GOP plan to hold the Republican National convention at the latest date ever is twofold:

1. The boys around Ike know that he won't go for a long campaign. It wears him out, makes him nervous, interferes with doctors' orders that he must take regular rests. If confronted with a three-month drag of oratory and whistle-stops, they figured he would throw up his hands and refuse to run.

2. GOP campaign experts also figure that by astute use of their advertising agent friends on Madison Avenue, they can accomplish the same political results in six weeks that they could in the customary twelve.

That was what happened last November.

First tried, however, in 1952, the blitz campaign was worked by Lester Weinrott and Rosser Reeves of the Ted Bates advertising agency, with Red Rudge of Fisher, Rudge and Neblett. Weinrott took Ike to a Long Island film studio and spent a whole day filming and recording one-minute TV and radio spots. Then Reeves persuaded the big advertisers to relinquish their network time.

Because most of the big advertisers were Republicans (only one big New York advertising agency is Democratic), it was a simple matter to get the TV and radio time relinquished. The plan worked miracles, and present strategy is to repeat in 1956.

PRETTY LOCOMOTIVES
Things are not entirely a bed of roses between the U. S. A. and Dictator Franco in the deal to establish American bases in Spain. An argument over higher priced and more streamlined locomotives for the Spanish government is the reason why.

Recently Franco's director of economic cooperation, Antonio Jimenez Arnaiz, let out a hot blast at the U. S. A. warning that the base deal might be ditched if the United States persisted in refusing "adequate assistance."

Arnaiz had been steamed up in advance of the speech by Spanish army officers and railroad officials because the Foreign Operations Administration insisted that they accept the low bid on American locomotives. The Spaniards, however, wanted a streamlined, high-priced engine, not just a plain American diesel.

The trouble started when bids were opened in the Madrid office of FOA on 14 diesel electric 1,600-horsepower locomotives. Two European bidders were thrown out, unable to meet specifications, and the lowest bidder after that was the Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton Corporation of Philadelphia. Its price: $199,600 per engine.

American Locomotive of Schenectady was next with $216,855; General Motors bid $223,339. However, American Locomotive was smart enough to send a streamlined engine over as a demonstrator. It was a fancy job, much more dolled up than specifications required and, according to FOA experts, not practical for Spanish use.

But the Spanish railroad men immediately fell in love with it, demanding that Uncle Sam buy them 14 of these pretty locomotives, rather than the plainer, less expensive models.

Sam Emmons, former top trolley man for Capital Transit in Washington, D. C., until finance tycoon Lou Wolfson took over, will now have to decide for FOA whether Franco's railroad men get what they want and whether the American taxpayer spends an additional quarter million dollars for glamor.

AID FOR SCHOOLS
After almost two months of calling two meetings of his House Labor and Education committee—except one to organize—good old Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina is holding hearings on the school construction bill.

Ordinarily Barden would be strong for helping education. He's a former schoolteacher himself. But he aims to block any school bill which carries any ban of segregation. And Senator Ives of New York, with Bender of Ohio, both Republicans, joined the charges of a school bill by tacking a segregation ban on the bill in the Senate.

This will win votes in Harlem and Cincinnati, but will never get a school bill through Congress.

STORY — RAY
THE STORY: Johnny Fletcher and Sam Cragg are broke when a bill collector calls. One thing leads to another and finally J. J. Kilkenny, the collector, is convinced after Sam, called "the strongest man in the world," tosses Kilkenny with a snap mare.

II

Kilkenny glowered at Johnny. "You think you're pretty good? You could take a bunch of cards like this every Monday morning—$10 skips, brother, not the easy $5 ones—you could take 10-12 cards like this every Monday, run down the skips and get the money, huh?"

"I most certainly could."

"Talk's cheap."

"All right," said Johnny. "Look over your cards, pick one out at random, or pick one you've failed to locate. Give it to me and by this time tomorrow I'll have the money."

"For how much?"

"For 10 bucks. How's that?"

"Brother," said Kilkenny, "you've just got yourself a little bet. I'll skinned quickly through your little bunch of cards, extracted one. 'Here's a nice little number. 'Alice Cummings, Chesterton Hotel.' She bought a fur coat from the Arctic Fur Company for sixty-nine nifty-five. She paid $2 a week for 12 weeks, then skipped, owing $49.95. That was four years ago, come next November, so there's a little matter of $34 interest, call it $74. You have the money here, tomorrow at this time and you give yourself a nice $10 bill. Fail and you pay me 10 bucks—and I'm bringing the brass knucks with me, to collect. How's that?"

"You got yourself a little deal, Mister," said Johnny.

"Practice some holds," Sam said, "maybe we can go another fall tomorrow, huh?"

Kilkenny scowled and went out. But the door did not close. Mr. Peabody, the manager of the Forty-Fifth Street Hotel, pushed it open.

"See here, Mr. Fletcher!" he bleated. "I've just had a complaint from the occupants of the room below this one. What are you doing up here, jumping exercise? You knocked the plaster off the ceiling down below."

Johnny made a vague gesture of dismissal. "Not now, Peabody, not now."

"What do you mean, not now?" demanded the hotel manager. Then he saw the wet socks on the bathroom floor. An expression of horror came over his face. "Washing again! How many times have I told you that we do not permit the guests to wash their clothing in the bathrooms?"

"Oh, go away," cried Johnny. "Can't you see I'm trying to think? You're bothering me."

"Very well," said Mr. Peabody sternly. "Think about paying your bill. Your three weeks are up tomorrow. You know the rules—three weeks' credit and out you go. So think, think how you're going to get the $36 you will owe me tomorrow."

"That's what I'm working on," said Johnny.

"Ah, so you don't have the money? I thought so. Perhaps I shouldn't even wait until tomorrow."

"You'll get your money, don't worry. You've always gotten it, haven't you?"

"No! I've had to lock you out of this room before."

"Peabody," said Johnny. "I like you, but I've got work to do, so will you go and lock out some other people and let me alone...?"

The Chesterton catered to the same kind of clientele as the Forty-Fifth Street Hotel, racetrack touts, chorus girls, would-be actors and actresses and the usual miscellany of Broadway characters and sharpshooters. Plus a few out-of-town people who came to New York now and then and sought cheap accommodations.

There were eight or 10 people in the lobby, but Johnny found a couple of vacant chairs.

"Why don't we go in the dining room and eat?" Sam asked anxiously. "I'm so hungry I could put salt on these leather chairs and eat them."

"In a minute, Sam, in a minute. Ah..."

A bellboy turned away from the desk, glanced at a slip of paper in his hand and called out, "Paging Mr. Malkin. Mr. Paul Malkin, please."

Mr. Malkin did not respond and the bellboy entered the adjoining dining room and called out a couple of times, then he returned and entered the dining room.

They had a nice lunch of soup, salad, New York cut steak, coffee and pie. Then the waiter brought the check. Johnny took the pencil and scribbled on it: Paul Malkin. "Your room number too, please," said the waiter.

"Of course," Johnny wrote down 821, then reached into a pocket. He fished around for a moment, smiled and shook his head. He picked up the pencil again and wrote on the check—"Tip, $1."

As they walked out of the dining room, Sam whispered nervously, "Let's get out of here fast!"

"Why? Mr. Malkin's out of the hotel at the moment. And he isn't a regular here, or the bellboy would have known him by sight. Relax, we've had a nice lunch, so now we get to work."

He stepped up to the desk and accosted the clerk. "I'm from the Hotel Credit Bureau," he said. "I want to ask you about a guest who stayed here, mm, four years ago."

"That's a long time ago," said the clerk. "What's the name?"

"Miss Alice Cummings."

A gleam came into the clerk's eyes. He went to the rear of his compartment and took down a ledger. Blowing dust off it, he returned and opened it on the desk.

"Alice Cummings, eh? Let's see, now." He ran his finger down a page. "Ah, yes, Room 715. She lived here quite a while."

"You knew her personally?" Johnny asked.

"Vaguely. A blond, I believe, or possibly a brunette. What hotel has she swindled now?"

"She owed money here?"

"Forty-six dollars, it says here."

"She didn't leave a forwarding address?"

"Don't be ridiculous. She skipped without paying her bill."

"How long had she stayed here altogether?"

"Oh, quite a while. Four, no almost five months. She paid for a while, then began to fall behind. She paid up, then finally got into us for $46, and that's the last we saw of her."

"You held her luggage?"

The clerk grimaced. "A trunk worth $2. Full of newspapers."

"What about her fur coat?"

"Fur coat? What—how do you know she had a fur coat?"

"It says so here on this card. She bought a fur coat from the Arctic Fur Company, on which she

How to End Party on Time

OMAHA — (P) — The woman wanted to make sure her cocktail party didn't last beyond 7 p. m.

Her invitations read 5 to 7 with the 7 underlined twice.

At the stroke of 7, alarm clocks, brought by the guests and hidden in various parts of the house, went off simultaneously.

The party broke up on time.

MR. AND MRS. MERRITT KENNEDY, who were married Feb. 11 in the First Baptist church in Harrisburg. Mrs. Kennedy is the former Miss Shirley Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Johnson of Harrisburg. The wedding photo and small insets are action shots taken at the wedding by Ronnie Doerge, photographer.

Miss Shirley Johnson, Merritt Kennedy Wed in Ceremony at First Baptist Church

Before an altar draped in white and decorated with standards of white gladioli and red carnations, Miss Shirley Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Johnson, 102 East State street, became the bride of Merritt Kennedy, Harrisburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Kennedy of Avoca, New York. Forty-two red tapers glowed in white candelabra.

The single ring ceremony took place Friday, Feb. 11, at 7 p. m. in the First Baptist church in Harrisburg with the Rev. Glen Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating.

The bride was lovely in a street length dress of white velvet designed princess style with elbow length sleeves, a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. She wore at the neck of the low V-shaped bodice a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Her veil of ice blue illusion was secured to a pearl studded hat, and she carried a heart-shaped bouquet of white pom poms touched with red.

Mrs. Robert Johnson, sister-in-law of the bride, from Pontiac, Mich., was matron of honor, choosing a street length dress of red taffeta, also designed princess style, which closed with tiny covered buttons down the back. At the end of the buttons was placed a large red taffeta bow which formed a small bustle. Mrs. Johnson carried a bouquet of red carnations interlaced with white.

James F. Johnson, brother of the bride, was best man, and Robert and John O. Johnson, also brothers of the bride, were candle-lighters and served as ushers.

Little Elizabeth Anne Johnson, niece of the bride, was flower girl wearing a white velvet princess style dress fashioned with tiny red hearts around the neckline and a red velvet ribbon down the back. Entwined in her "pony tail" hair style were red roses, and she scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Miss Lorene Dorris, organist, played "Indian Love Call" and accompanied Bill Williams, soloist, who sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer" as a benediction.

Mrs. Johnson chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of teal blue with black accessories with a pink carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Sixty-five close friends and relatives attended a reception following the wedding in the Baptist church.

Mrs. E. M. Barton, hostess, To Wason Home Bureau Unit met at the home of Mrs. E. M. Barton Wednesday afternoon. The business meeting was conducted and roll call was answered by telling "a way to increase membership."

The minor topic, "Sewing on Buttons, Snaps and Fastenings," was given by Mrs. Raymond McConnell, and the major topic, "Care of Bathroom and Kitchen Equipment," was presented by Mrs. Al Purcell.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mrs. Vern DeVille, Mrs. Bramlet, Glascock, Mrs. Sherman, Wainwright, Mrs. Al Purcell, Mrs. Clarence Barton, Mrs. Harmon Bramlet, Mrs. Lloyd Barton, Mrs. Franklin Bramlet, Mrs. Raymond McConnell and one guest, Mrs. Gilbert Barton.

U. S. Running Out Of Patience With UN Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is beginning to run out of patience with United Nations efforts to free 15 American fliers held by Red China, officials disclosed today.

They said the United States still is leaving the job to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, but can't rely on the U. N. official alone "too much longer." They refused, however, to set a deadline after which the United States would take steps of its own to try to win release of the prisoners.

Hammarskjold is reported still to have "one or two angles" he wants to try in his efforts to get Red China to free the fliers. He made a special trip to Peiping early this year but so far that mission has failed to free any American.

The 15 fliers are among 57 Americans known to be held by Red China. There may be many more but Communist China has never admitted holding others.

Marion Group Applies for Bank Charter

MARION, Ill. (UP)—Fourteen Marion business and professional men have applied for a state charter to form a new bank here to be called the Bank of Egypt.

The application to State Auditor Orville Hodge said the bank would be capitalized at $150,000 by issuing 1,500 shares of common stock at $100 par value per share. Each purchaser of stock would pay an additional $66.66 per share to provide a $50,000 surplus and $50,000 operating account.

It was reported all the stock has been subscribed, mostly by Marion residents.

The proposed bank would occupy a building erected for its use which would include two drive-in banking windows.

The Bank of Marion is the only bank operating here now.

Here are a few more tired old cats that we'll be glad to get rid of during our annual—

CAT SALE

PLANNING A BULLFIGHT? Maybe you can use one of these two bright red all wool fitted coats, sizes 18 and 12. Scare the bull to death, you know. Or you can have another in the same style but in a bluish blue, size 10. All three were once a hilarious $39.95, but you take your choice at $14.88

WHAT HAVE YOU GOT TO LOSE? Only your character and your reputation, if you have the nerve to slip into one of these ever so snugly built up knit dresses, in anemic pastels and tattle-gray (formerly white). Sizes 10 to 16, they were $29.95 to $49.95, but we'll gladly part with 'em for— Half Price

REAL GONE THREADS . . . that's these Lilli Ann, Adele Simpson, Cecil Chapman, and Kasper originals. Most of the threads in them really are gone, or at least quite faded. Maybe you'll think the same of the price . . . reduced from $49.95 to $89.95 almost clear down out of sight. Please? — $19.00 AND $29.00

IF YOU HAVE A WELL-ROUNDED personality, you might get away with one of these green, or curdled chartreuse. Sizes 8, 10, and 12 respectively. They were once $ 9.88 $39.95 . . . no sale! How about

THESE WINTER COTTON DRESSES should never have left the bale. The fact that they did is our own tough luck . . . we should never have priced them at $10.95. Our conscience won't hurt us the least little bit when we let you have one of them for $2.88 just

HAVING A PARTY? Invite your worst enemy and give her this lovely (?) shantung suit with matching fringed Egyptian ('e gyped somebody) stole. It was $29.95, and kinda pretty at that. Now it's not so pretty, and not $ 12.88 so expensive . . . just

TO TOP IT ALL OFF, this pile of rain hats, in all sorts of wild designs and materials, is just simply . . . well, just sort of simple. We're almost ashamed to ask even 10c

THESE SUEDES DIDN'T SWAY YOU at $29.95 . . . all nine of 'em! But they're not bad jackets . . . they're just getting a little too familiar, that's all. So we lost our heads . . . won't you help us save face by claying away at them $ 17.88 tomorrow for only

CASH IN ON THIS CASHMERE that's just the least bit soiled. We think it used to be a white sweater, and the price tag used to read $25.00. You'd have been an absolute dope to pay that much, but you'd be real sensible $ 7.88 if you paid only

WASHING CARS . . . WAXING FLOORS? Maybe you can use one of these horrible flannelette dusters (we call 'em that because they've gathered so much dust on our racks) that used to be $5.95. Please, please take 'em away $1.88 at only

ONE OF A KIND FASHIONS (and thank goodness there's only one of such ghastly styles) in dressy coats . . . yours almost just for the asking. Your mother didn't buy one of these 25 years ago at $79.95, but they say the younger generation is more flighty. Why not take a flyer with one of these now at $34.88 just

Fight Snow Drifts To Get Feed to Starving Sheep

By United Press

Relief crews fought through snow drifts today to get feed to an estimated 24,000 starving sheep isolated by blizzards, and a massive cold wave stretched from the Dakotas to Texas.

The rescue operations were un- derway in Carbon County, Wyom- ington, where numerous locks of sheep were reported trapped in snow so deep that grazing was im- possible.

Feed-laden trucks followed the rescue workers. Air drop opera- tions similar to the type that saved blizzard-trapped livestock in 1949 were being considered.

Girl Gets First Piece of Stratton Birthday Cake

SPRINGFIELD — The daughter of an unemployed miner who came to see Gov. William G. Stratton about a job today got the first piece of the governor's birthday cake.

Her daddy got an appointment about a job. Stratton, who will be 41 Saturday, cut the cake at his open house, where he sees all callers on a first-come, first-served basis. He handed the first piece of cake to Barbara Jane Barton, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Barton.

Barton, of Bulpit, 20 miles south-east of here, said he was formerly employed at a mine at nearby Tovey but had been out of work for seven months.

Stratton made an appointment for him to see an official at Sangamo Electric Co. here about a job.

The governor told the little girl "come back and see me on my next birthday."

Claims Body of Brother Left at Missouri Funeral Home for 38 Years

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — "Brother Ed" Cochran died in 1917. His body was taken to a funeral home in Caruthersville, Mo., and remained there unclaimed for 38 years.

Next Sunday a Baptist minister will intone prayers, and strangers who never knew the forgotten Negro will sing hymns. Then Brother Ed will be buried.

Throughout two world wars Brother Ed's body was kept in a wooden casket. Sometimes the casket was moved against the wall of the funeral home.

His body was brought to Memphis by a surviving brother, Ezra Lee Cochran. Ezra Lee said his wife had "been after me to tend to it" for some time.

The subject of Brother Ed came up last Christmas in the Cochran household. His brother and sister-in-law had heard reports that his body was still in Caruthersville.

"If it is true, we should go up there and do something," Mrs. Cochran said.

Several days ago, the Cochrans got a ride to Caruthersville.

"We told the man who we were, and he took us to an open box leaning against the wall like you see dolls in store windows," Mrs. Cochran said.

The body, covered and well preserved, was returned here.

Curious View Remains

J. S. Edwards said flowers had been sent to his Memphis funeral home from both whites and Negroes who had heard about Brother Ed's funeral. Edwards said as many as 4,000 persons have walked into the funeral home to view the body.

"Our telephone has been ringing off the hook," Edwards said. "They want to know if it's really true, about a man who died in 1917 and was still around."

Edwards said the Missouri funeral home did a good embalming job, because all he had to do was take care of minor defects.

Ezra Lee said his brother would have been 73 years old had he lived. He died at 35.

"My wife was after me to tend to it and I wanted to see him buried before I died," said Ezra Lee, 66. "I'd like to have him put away right before I pass on myself."

4 Jurors Selected For Odum Trial

MARION, Ill. (UP) — Four jurors have been chosen for the murder trial of Fred Odum, 40, Marion electrician, and attorneys resumed questioning veniremen today.

The first panel was accepted Wednesday after 2½ days of questioning prospective jurors. Odum is accused of killing Lorin Norman, 25, Marion, by striking him with a piece of firewood at a picnic last summer.

Summons were issued for 50 more veniremen late Wednesday when a list of 100 summoned earlier was nearly exhausted.

Military Plane Crashes in Missouri; Nine Crewmen Dead

SEDALIA, Mo. (UP) — A giant military refueling plane crashed in flames shortly after take-off Wednesday night, killing 9 of the 11 crewmen aboard.

Sedalia Air Force Base reported two men parachuted to safety shortly before the big KC97 crashed in a farm field.

The "Flying Tanker" plunged to death in flames about 10 miles from its base. It had just taken off on a training mission.

Several witnesses said they saw the craft, assigned to the 340th Aerial Refuel Squadron, ablaze as it struggled to gain altitude. A board of officers was appointed immediately to determine the cause of the crash.

Attorney Munches Sandwiches Sprinkled With Glass; Wins Case

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UP) — Atty. Raymond G. Stanbury, defense counsel for a restaurant owned by screen star Esther Williams and her husband Ben Gage, won his case Wednesday by sprinkling bits of broken glass on a piece of bread and calmly munching the "sandwich."

The jury voted 9-3 against plaintiff Ward E. Willicutt, 42, an industrial engineer, asking $51,239 damages for internal injuries suffered when he inadvertently swallowed bits of glass in a dish of ice cream at the cafe.

Stanbury downed four of the "sandwiches" to prove the plaintiff could not have been seriously injured.

Instructor Faces Murder Charge in Air Base Shooting

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UP) — A civilian instructor in intelligence training today faced charges of murdering a lieutenant colonel and wounding a captain in a flurry of gunfire that ended a long-standing disagreement.

William Francis Sink, 38, instructor at Sheppard Air Force Base, was charged with the shooting.

A volley of shots killed Lt. Col. Carl G. Carlson, 43, of Spokane, Wash., and critically wounded Capt. Marvin L. Marchesi, 34, of Los Angeles Wednesday in the colonel's office.

Sheppard authorities believed the six shots fired at the officers climaxed a disagreement among the three men when they were stationed at Lowry Air Force Base at Denver.

Carlson was shot in the head several times. Marchesi also was hit in the head at close range and was reported in serious condition.

One Sheppard spokesman quoted Sink as saying after the shooting: "I did what I wanted to."

Rend City Water Group Asks State And Federal Aid

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UP) — A delegation from the Rend City Water Conservation District seeking to locate one or more dams on the Big Muddy River in the Benton area visited Gov. William G. Stratton at his open house today.

The delegation asked Stratton for his help in getting federal and state aid for the project.

Included in the delegation were State Rep. Bert Baker Jr. (D-Benton) and four trustees of the conservation district. The district was formed to control the water resources of the area, providing a water supply for industry, living needs and recreation.

It was believed to be the first water conservation district created in the state. Stratton, in his address to the convening 1955 Legislature, urged formation of such districts and asked for broadening of the federal water resources act to give the districts more opportunity for financial aid.

Tobacco Heir, Wife, Skipper Abandon Blazing Yacht

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP) — Millionaire tobacco heir Richard J. Reynolds, his wife and the skipper of their yacht abandoned their blazing craft five miles off Miami Beach early today and escaped safely to the Florida shore in a small boat.

The yacht caught fire near the end of a leisurely 170-mile cruise from Nassau. Had the accident occurred earlier on the voyage, the consequences could have been tragic.

Reynolds told the Coast Guard that a gas leak apparently caused the fire to break out on his sleek 53-foot cruiser, "Scarlet O'Hara."

Poston, Bootstrap Program Featured In Magazine Article

CARBONDALE, Ill. (UP) — Richard W. Poston of Southern Illinois university and Eldorado's "Operation Bootstrap" are featured in the March issue of American Magazine out Feb. 27.

Poston is included in the magazine's "Interesting People" section as "the man who doctors tired towns." The two photographs used show Poston talking to a group of Eldoradoans at a street rally and volunteers at work on the City Hall beautification project.

"In scores of communities from the shores of Puget Sound to the coal fields of Illinois, Richard Poston, 38, has been labeled 'the best friend a small town ever had,'" the article states. The director of Southern's community development was formerly at the University of Washington.

The article tells how Poston "moves in on a community" and "administers a hypodermic by showing the townsfolk how to help themselves."

On Tuesday of this week, Eldorado won one of the top awards of the Freedom Foundation for its community development program.

Jury Returns 13 Indictments For Housing Frauds

CHICAGO (AP) — Indictments charging Federal Housing Administration frauds have been returned by a federal grand jury against 10 Chicago area individuals and three business firms.

The indictments, returned Wednesday, charge the 13 with "making false completion certificates for the FHA."

Complainants had said they were promised but not paid $100 bonuses if they would install aluminum siding on their buildings, the indictments said. They were told that the jobs would be models which would attract other customers, it was charged.

Conviction carries maximum penalties up to two years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Fire Damages Church at Salem

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — A fire believed to have started in a furnace room badly damaged the Trinity Methodist Church here Wednesday night.

There was no estimate on the loss caused by the fire which burned for nearly four hours. An addition to the church was undamaged but only the walls remained of the main part of the building.

Firemen said the church's brick veneer walls prevented effective fire-fighting. After the roof caved in, flames shot up 50 feet in the air.

The fire was discovered about 1 1/2 hours after church members rehearsing a program left the building at 10 p. m.

Kid Gavilan Protests Loss To Constance

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former welterweight champion Kid Gavilan, again yelling "fixed fight," was scheduled to file an official protest today against Wednesday night's decision defeat by West Indian Hector Constance.

Young Constance, a professional champion of Trinidad, B.W.I., threw acid on Gavilan's comeback campaign by winning a unanimous, upset, 10-round decision over the Cuban "Keed" before a sellout crowd of 3,905 in the Miami Beach Auditorium. Constance was a 4-1 underdog.

The three ring officials agreed that 24-year-old Hector's fast footwork and speedy counter-punching had beaten 29-year-old Gavilan in his second comeback fight. But there was no agreement among the 13 sports writers at the ringside. Six favored Constance; six had Gavilan ahead, and one scored a draw.

Gavilan declared, "This decision was worse than the one in the Johnny Saxton fight at Philadelphia." Saxton won the title in that one.

Manager Yamil Chade said today, "We don't like to make trouble, but this decision was truly dishonest. Gavilan definitely won. And I know all the television fans in the United States will agree. We will file protests immediately with the National Boxing Association and the Miami Beach Boxing Commission."

However, the Cuban ex-champ said he would continue his campaign to recapture the 147-pound crown and "come in much lighter than the 154 1/2 I weighed last night."

It was a bad night for the Gavilan family. "Keed's" younger brother, Kid Gavilan II, lost a six-round decision to Bid Nethers of Zanesville, Ohio, in a preliminary. Constance said his victory inspired him to seek a fight with top contender Carmen Basilio or champion Saxton. "I thought I won last night by a good margin," he said. "I knuckled him back on his heels several times."

The three officials favored Constance on the "10-point must" system as follows: Judge Morris Feigold, 99-97; Judge Gus Jacobson, 97-95. The United Press favored Gavilan 97-95.

Thompsonville Wins Opener in District Tourney

Thompsonville won its first game in the Waltonville district tournament last night by defeating the host team, 58-46. The triumph gave Coach Bob Munday's junior-studded team a berth in the semifinals tonight. Woodlawn won over Valier in the other game, 82-49.

Meeting this evening for a chance to play in the championship contest tomorrow night are Bluford and Ashley in the first game and Thompsonville and Woodlawn in the second. Bluford is the tourney favorite. Thompsonville and Woodlawn have split in their two meetings this year.

The Tigers had little trouble disposing of Waltonville after the first quarter. They trailed only once, that coming in the opening period, 12-11. By the end of the quarter, Tville was on top 15-12.

With Russell Lemmon leading the way, Thompsonville took a 30-20 command at halftime and pushed it to 44-30 entering the final quarter. Only in the last period was Waltonville able to outscore its opponents and then by a mere two points—16-14.

Thompsonville hit 23 of 48 attempts from the floor for a tidy .480 while the tourney hosts dropped in 19 of 56 for a .340.

THOMPSONVILLE—Lemmon 20, Gregory 7, Issac 0, Johnson 0, Hodgson 11, Marsh 4, Doss 12, Snyder 2, Carlile 2, Knight 0. WALTONVILLE—Bock 12, Dame 6, Kabat 9, McCowen 19, Work 0.

HTHS Freshmen Win Two Games From McLeansboro

The Harrisburg freshman basketball teams ended their season last night with wins over McLeansboro at Davenport gym.

The freshman varsity won, 59-47, and the preliminary was taken, 44-32.

In the main tilt, Harrisburg had to come from behind. McLeansboro led 15-10 at the quarter but the locals pulled into a 26-24 lead at halftime. Harrisburg led 37-34 at the end of the third quarter.

Bob Clark was high with 15 points. Ray Hassett had 12. Bill Yates 10, Eddie Price 10, Donald Biggs 8, L. J. Banks 4, and Jerry Hicks also played.

In the preliminary Harrisburg led 14-9 at the quarter, 28-15 at the half, 33-20 at the end of the third quarter.

Jerry Hicks had 20 points for high scoring honors. Bud Logan had 12, Mickey Stone 6, L. J. Banks 4, Zan Hefner 2 and Jon Frohock saw action.

The freshman varsity won 12 games, lost two this year. Both losses were to West Frankfort. Jim McKee coached the frosh group.

Equality Freshmen Beat Crab Orchard

In a freshman game played yesterday afternoon at Equality high school gymnasium, the host freshmen bested Crab Orchard, 80-40. Emory and Glover led the victors with 25 and 20 points respectively. Mandrol collected 17 for the losing cause.

Looking At Sports

By BILL MELTON

For the first time in a number of years Carrier Mills will enter regional tournament play with a season's record that shows more victories than defeats. To date the Wildcats have won eight games and lost 15.

However, the Wildcats are finishing a season's schedule that was probably the toughest a team from Carrier Mills ever faced. At the start of the season on successive playing dates, all away from home, the Cats met Mt. Vernon, Pinckneyville and Johnston City. In none of these games did Carrier Mills take a bad licking, losing to Mt. Vernon by eight points, Pinckneyville by ten and J. C. by 12. However, the team didn't get squared away and continued to lose many games by a few points.

The season started under a cloud with death, injury and inelegibility weakening the squad.

Just before the start of school an automobile accident took the life of Jim Reeder and injured Terry Gullede. Reeder was captain-elect of the team and Gullede was expected to add strength to the squad. Then Charles Lail was ineligible the entire first semester and missed practice at the start of the second semester due to sickness.

Lail was very much in the game last Friday at Mt. Vernon City. Lail, a sophomore, stands more than 6 feet in height and is a good rebounder and under-the-basket shot. By tournament time he may round into shape. He definitely will help the team.

Coach Claude Shelton's ten-player tourney squad will probably include Max Berns, James Reid, Jimmy Rouse, Harold Fitts, Lawrence Cofield, Gene Shadowens, J. C. Storms, Vern Rollins, Charles Lail and Oliver Rollins.

Only one, co-captain Max Berns, is a senior. Reid, Shadowens, Storms and Oliver Rollins are juniors. Fitts, Cofield, Lail and Rouse are sophomores and Vern Rollins a freshman.

O. Rollins will be the highest scorer in the tourney, having hit for 613 points to date and his brother Vern will be one of the few freshmen in the meet.

Carrier Mills will meet the tourney host, Norris City, in the second game of the tourney. This will be sort of a "rubber match" for the two teams as they have met twice previously, each taking a decision.

Although the Wildcats look more like a team building for the future with the large number of underclassmen, it is a team that can't be overlooked this time. There is a lot of potential and maybe all the boys will be hitting at tourney time. That's when it counts!

See where one southern Illinois sports writer is about to trade his typewriter for an airplane, or something. Jim Dowell, sports writer for the Marion Daily Republican, is a lieutenant in the Air Force reserve and reports for active duty in March. The paper is looking for a writer.

Coaches of the Little Egyptian conference got together this week and picked an all-star basketball squad. Crab Orchard placed two players on the squad—Harold Hill, forward, and Don Proctor, guard. Jerry Burns of Woodlawn was awarded the center spot. The second forward position went to Valier's Dave Simpson and Bill Irvin from Bluford paired with Proctor at guard. Second team all-star berths—forwards, Russell Lemmon, Thompsonville, and Eugene Kiefer of Dahlgren; guards, Jim Sohn of Royalton and Harry Sauls of Bluford; center, John Aiken, Royalton.

Three in Race For Big Ten Cage Scoring Honors

CHICAGO (AP) — Three sharp-shooting Big Ten cagers today were locked in a hot race for conference scoring honors with only a half point separating them.

Dick Garmaker of Minnesota topped the list with an average of 25.9 points for 12 games.

Frank Ehmann of Northwestern with an average of 25.5 points, also in 12 games, was second; while Don Schlundt of Indiana was third with an 11-game average of 25.4 points.

Two new stars also moved their way into the top ranks.

John Miller of Ohio State was in fifth place with a 20.5 average per game, largely off a shooting percentage of .479. Michigan's Ron Kramer moved from 24th to eighth place in the last two weeks on a 19.3 average.

Illinois meanwhile took over as the Big Ten's top scoring team, although Iowa had the sharpest shooting average with a 41.7 per cent standing. Minnesota was regarded as the best on defense.

Air Academy Hopes To Field Top Grid Team by 1958 Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U. S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs hopes to field a top caliber football team by the 1958 season. Athletic Director Lt. Col. Robert Whitlow told a news conference here Wednesday. Whitlow said that an eight-game schedule has been arranged for the freshman squad this year and said that plans are underway to attract top athletes to the Academy.

Preacher Roe Notifies the Baltimore Orioles He Will Retire from Baseball

By United Press

Ol' Preacher Roe called it a career today because, at 39, it's "too darn rough to pitch even once a week."

The skinny southpaw from West Plains, Mo., who helped pitch the Brooklyn Dodgers to three pennants and was sold last fall to the Baltimore Orioles, telephoned the Orioles Wednesday night that he has decided to retire and added there was "no chance" he'd change his mind.

An Orioles official said that, since Roe never even reported to the team, the Dodgers will have to refund a "proportionate amount" of the $75,000 the Orioles paid for Roe and infielder Billy Cox in the fall sale.

The official refused to say how large this refund would be, but it was known that the bulk of the $75,000 was for Cox, not for Roe.

Although the Orioles indicated Roe's announcement caught them by surprise, Roe insisted it shouldn't have been a shock because "I kept telling them all last summer at Brooklyn that it was my last year. And then, after the season, I told them I wasn't going to play any more."

Roe, officially listed as 36 years old, admitted late last season he was then 38 and thus his birthday this Saturday will make him 39. He had a 17-year playing career, 11 in the National league, with a lifetime major-league record of 127 victories and 84 defeats.

Although he came up in the St. Louis Cardinal chain, Roe reached the majors with Pittsburgh in 1944. After four seasons, he went to the Dodgers in a deal regarded as one of the shrewdest ever made by Branch Rickey, then Dodger general manager.

Hit Peak in 1951
The Dodgers obtained Roe, along with the brilliant Cox and infielder Gene Mauch for pitchers Hal Gregg and Vic Lombardi and outfielder Dixie Walker. Dodger fans howled in anguish at the announcement, for Walker was one of the most popular players in Brooklyn history. But the howls died as Walker faded and both Roe and Cox became stars.

Roe twice had the league's best winning percentage as a Dodger and hit his peak in 1951 when he won 22 games and lost only three. He appeared in three World Series and had a record of two wins and one loss, all against the Yankees.

Last season he appeared in only 15 games, won only three and lost four.

San Francisco Dons Lead College Teams in Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Never mind those teams that are taking the "high road" in point scoring; the San Francisco Dons have taken the "low road" of defense to the No. 1 national ranking.

Weekly statistics issued today by the NCAA show that the Dons have attained their top rating by leading the nation in defense, allowing only 50.4 points per game — although they stand 130th in a field of 162 on offense.

This combination has paid off for the Dons in a record of 20 victories and one loss, and a certain berth in the NCAA tournament.

The statistics also disclose why Marquette has scored 20 straight victories — a winning streak approached in the nation only by San Francisco's 18 straight. Marquette boasts the nation's largest difference between points scored and points allowed — 19.4 points per game.

By contrast, Furman—unranked nationally and regarded as unlikely to win a tourney berth—apparently has the national offense championship sewed up.

Led by Darrell Floyd, the nation's leading individual scorer, the Purple Palladins have averaged 85.4 points per game. If they can stay close to this pace through one more regular season game and play in the Southern conference tournament, they will smash the all-time record of 91.7 points per game they set only last year when they were led by Frank Selvy.

Bradley Loses 15th Straight as St. Louis Wins, 82-74

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley lost its 15th straight basketball game Wednesday night, 82-74, to a late-starting St. Louis University five. Bradley held a 37-34 lead at the half, but the Billikins' Grady Smith and Joe Todd went to work in the last 10 minutes and pushed St. Louis to its 17th win in 23 games.

High scorer of the evening was Bradley's Harvey Babetch with 25 points. Smith led St. Louis with 23.

GLASS SHOE MAKES DEBUT as new spring fashion. Brand new to shoe fashions this spring is the glass shoe. Done in a woven material called glass-magic, these translucent shoes have been developed for pliability, softness, lightness, and coolness. Because the weave is open, the shoes can be worn comfortably without stockings. They sponge off with water and a cloth. The material itself was achieved by twisting glass fiber in yarn, then wrapping it with vinyl. Shown here is a sandal designed by Lipare with wrap of glass-magic. Flower, too, is in glass and the shoe comes in pink or blue with matching luster calf strap and heel.

Stratton Receives Mail From All Sections On Order to State Police to Halt Gambling

By DON E. CHAMBERLAIN
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (Special) — State Police crackdown on gambling is bringing Gov. William G. Stratton a steady run of mail containing tips and commending him for ordering such action. The mail comes from preachers, lawyers, wives, clubwomen and just ordinary average citizens. Some are from wives who are bitter about their husbands' losses at gambling. There is little concentration of the mail from any locality. If it is of statewide nature, an Oak Park resident wrote in that he has changed his mind about legalizing gambling and now wonders if pari-mutuel betting at Illinois horse race tracks shouldn't be outlawed. A woman in Jacksonville wrote commending gambling raids but that she would be happier if Springfield were rid of prostitution.

The Governor said he has received hundreds of letters endorsing state police raids on commercialized or syndicated gambling places. Most recent raids were at Villa Venice, Venice, Madison county, where on Feb. 9, state police, led by Capt. Walter A. Flecken, Du Quoin, used axes to smash their way through locked doors to find approximately 50 persons and seize evidence burning in a furnace.

Letters From Other Areas

A Wood River businessman, writing Stratton on the Venice raid, said: "I am glad that someone higher than our local officials are able to see what is going on and does something about it. I take this means of expressing my thanks and admiration of the action taken by the state police at Villa Venice. Sometimes ordinary people like myself get to thinking of officials lack courage to take action."

Other letters either praising Stratton or the state police for raiding gambling places, or supplying him with "tips" as to spots where there are slot machines and other gambling, came from East Alton, Bridgeport, Rock Falls, Blue Island, Lyons, Freeport, Joliet, Champaign, Bend, Lawrenceville, Ava, East St. Louis, Peoria, Mounds, Lena, Pana, Morris, Hillsboro, Ridgway and Salem.

Two unsigned telegrams from St. Louis and addressed to Governor Orville R. Stratton, apparently both from the same sender, said: "If Club Prevue, formerly known as The Mounds Club, continues to operate with dice, will ask for impeachment" and "I see you ignored my telegram... of the dice activities. Be in Springfield for a showdown." There is a Mounds Club in Madison county.

Another telegram, from La Grange in Cook county and signed "Women's Club," said: "Slots and bandy places operating in Lyons, McCook, Argo and other southwestern Cook county suburbs in spite of actual notice to and with full knowledge of village trustees and chief of police. Death threatened. Do we have to put up with such mafia tactics?"

An East St. Louis resident wrote: "After reading you had the state police raid gambling I had to give you a word of praise. I had just about lost hope of your doing some good things." A Peoria wrote to supply the name and location of a tavern in Bureau county which he said had a crap table and a black jack game in the basement. Replies to Lawrenceville Letter

A letter from a Lawrenceville resident to protest alleged failure of the state police to raid certain clubs. He wrote "I am not a club member. I am not a gambler and I am not a religious fanatic. I cannot see that if it is illegal to gamble in this fine state how a select group can be excluded from the law just because they carry cards in their billfold showing them a member of some club."

Stratton's reply over his own signature to the Lawrenceville writer was to thank him and to say: "I sincerely appreciate your effort in bringing your views on this matter to my attention." A minister in Pana wrote "Thanks for raids on Christian county taverns and for seizing 'one armed bandits'."

In response to a letter from a resident of Morris, Governor

Stratton's home town, calling attention to a newspaper story stating slot machines were operating in Grundy county, Stratton wrote: My views against this sort of thing are well known and I will certainly do everything to see that the law is enforced." Raids followed.

A letter from Hillsboro said: "I heartily commend you for your effort to rid our state of gambling and prostitution. I pray that the Lord will give you courage and loyal help to accomplish your purpose" and another from Ridgway said "we have been plagued with gambling here in Gallatin county for several years. I feel that the raids made here is a good start. I thank you."

In replying to a letter from Lena protesting alleged gambling at a festival at Lena in Stephenson county, Stratton wrote: "The state cannot enter into a situation unless there has been a breakdown of law. I suggest you bring your complaint to the attention of the state's attorney and the sheriff of Stephenson county."

The Governor said all communications in regard to gambling are acknowledged and the information in them passed on to state police. Many such letters, it is said, have resulted in local action, and later when local enforcement officers failed to act, state police stepped in. Recent raids have been in Macou, Alexander, Pulaski, Adams, Knox and Madison counties.

Answers All Letters

All letters are answered by the Governor as a rule, except when the reply is written by an aide in the form of a "thank you" acknowledgment with the suggestion that the writer take the matter up with the state's attorney and the sheriff in the county involved, explaining there must be a local breakdown before the state can enter.

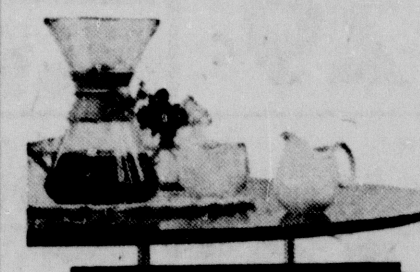

A woman writing from Rock Falls, wrote twice, once to commend the Governor for taking action.

No Miracle Cure In Strange, Old Cold Remedies

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — This is for bleary-eyed cold sufferers, who will be excused if they have to lay down their newspapers and blow their noses halfway through the story.

No, there is not a new "miracle" cure for colds. Larry Kaz of New York, who inspired this essay, is an authority on old cures, strange ones, and he admits it would be a miracle if any of them worked. But in desperation you might like to try one.

Kaz, who has rounded up cold cures from all over, said his favorite comes from the Scottish Highlands. You catch a spider, tie it in a piece of muslin and wrap the muslin around your neck. When the spider dies, so does your cold.

Try Fish Heads

In nearby Ireland, according to Kaz, they don't have anything to do with spiders. There, it's beetles. "In Donegal County," he said, "the traditional way to get rid of the sniffles is to put a beetle in a bottle. When the beetle dies, the patient has lost his cold."

If you are squeamish about insects, try an old Pennsylvania Dutch remedy. The head of a fresh fish is stuffed in the patient's mouth and left there until the nasal passages are cleared. This tends to isolate the patient after a while, which is probably hygienic.

Animals play a part in many of the remedies in the Kaz collection. In Australia, the aborigines slice off the ear of a kangaroo and wear it around their neck on a string until the cold goes away.

Eskimoes make a paste out of whale blubber and run it across the bridge of the nose.

A Traffic Stopper!

The most dramatic cure comes from Bosnia. A cold sufferer is told to lie down, spread-eagle fashion, at the nearest crossroads. A copper coin is placed under his head. He is supposed to lie there until the cold clears up, although this cure has gone out of fashion somewhat since the advent of automobiles.

Kaz scoffs at all these methods but he likes to spread them around as propaganda for electric vaporizers. He manufactures vaporizers and is anxious to point out how convenient it is to plug one in and sniff your cares away.

Vaporizers are not new, by the way. Peasants in Germany have been treating colds for ages by sniffing the fumes of boiling beer.

at Venice, Metropolis and other southern Illinois places. In her second letter she offered her help regardless of warnings not to do so (but this is my state in which I hope to bring up my son to be a good honest citizen. The information I can furnish will be of great help."

A temperance society in Bridgeport urged the Governor to "clean up Bridgeport. There are slot machines in the (she named a veteran's service post)." An East Alton resident wrote Madison county was wide open, that he toured the county at 4:30 one morning and found "numerous places that stay open all night, drinking and gambling."

A Freeport resident commended Stratton as follows: "You deserve to be highly commended for taking a stand against gambling." A Jolietian sent in a tip on bookmaking at a Joliet tavern, which he said "welched" on bets and that local authorities refused to act. A Bend minister wrote to "express my deep appreciation of use of the state police to raid gambling in this (Macoupin county) area."

A woman writing from Rock Falls, wrote twice, once to commend the Governor for taking action.

Eldorado Juniors To Present Class Play Tonight

The Eldorado high school Junior class tonight will present "Just Ducky," a comedy in three acts by Donald Payton. The story of the play: What makes teen-age girls do the things they do?

Betty Lou Maxwell and Bernadine Smith are a couple of questions and problems rolled into one. This day started off peaceably enough, in fact it was a whale of a day. Papa Maxwell had just been chosen as the new head of the Citizens committee. But it seems that Betty Lou and Bernadine had been wanting to write to Vesper Blayne, the editor of a love-love column — and they chose this day. Of course they had no problem, but doesn't every girl have the desire to write a letter? So they proceeded to make one up filled with pathos and deep heart throbs. But their letter wasn't published. Instead, Miss Blayne called on Mama Maxwell and unfolded to her the complete story of Betty Lou's "sad plight." From there things reach

ALOHA FROM HONOLULU:

Shipboard Party for Tour Conductor
Is Highlight of Trip Back to U. S.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Daisy M. Seright of The Register and her friend, Mrs. Blanche Eden of Kansas City, Kans., have just returned to the United States from a trip to Hawaii. Some of their experiences have been written in the form of a round-robin letter to friends at home. The letter was not originally intended for publication, and is in informal style, but is believed of sufficient interest to publish in instalments, of which this is the last.

Section III Reporter: Blanche Eden
"Homeward Bound"

After eleven days on the islands, five and a half at the Royal Hawaiian and five and a half on tour by plane and limousine, we left Honolulu with a mingled feeling of satisfaction and sadness. Satisfied we had seen most every important place of interest, but sorry to leave the sunshine and flowers, the music and tropical atmosphere of such a restful, happy people.

It had been so wonderful in that we had had such a congenial tour crowd. It just naturally divided into three groups. Seven of us, Mr. and Mrs. Payne from Montana and five widows had eaten at the same table at the Royal Hawaiian, where we had so much fun—trying the different Hawaiian dishes, laughing and gossiping a little about the ones in our group. Always music and a floor show and dancing. And—of course—Daisy, with her good stories and quick comeback, has added to our fun. A wonderful traveling companion.

We left the hotel Feb. 2nd for the ship after many farewells, the hotel hostess giving us leis and a kiss, which always accompanies a lei. When we arrived at the ship, two friends, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Randall, whom we had met coming over and had seen and played cards with at the Royal, were waiting at our room with a ship letter and remained with us until sailing time at 4 p. m., which is really an occasion. Hundreds of friends down to see the passengers off. The Matson Lines furnish hundreds of rolls of colored streamers to the passengers to throw over to their friends on shore. Everyone so bedecked with leis of orchids, tube roses and other tropical flowers and the orchestra playing and singing sweet Hawaiian music as we sail away. Shortly after, we throw our leis into the ocean, a tradition meaning we wish to return. Then the sun-tanned natives follow our ship, diving for quarters tossed from the ship.

Rough Ocean Again

We returned to our room to unpack and found a lei from Daisy from the Matson Steamship Co. We were so bedraggled as we hadn't had time to have our hair done and were so exhausted from our five and a half day tour of the islands, we piled into bed. The ocean was getting rough, so I didn't go down to dinner, but Daisy was still going strong. Thursday, the sea was even rougher and I welcomed a chance to stay in bed to rest, and after breakfast Daisy turned in, and we both were in our rooms all day and the stewardess brought us seasick pills and light meals.

As I mentioned before, our tour group divided into three groups—our well behaved, happy seven, with no ulterior motive of conquest. The second group—three couples in their forties who seemed to have much in common. And the third group—three elderly women from Minnesota and a mysterious Mrs. Rider from Carmel who didn't know any of Daisy's or my friends from Carmel, until she found that we were visiting there a few days on our return and then she knew them all. Then a little red headed widow from New York, who claims to be a Fox Movie critic. Then "Wanda," the young flippant, popular gal from Washington who is traveling as guest of her mother-in-law, a very foreign, elderly person, and who has had her hands full, keeping tab on Wanda.

Mr. Neill, our conductor, has spent most of his time with that group—keeping them lined up and happy, especially Wanda, who knew everyone a few hours after coming aboard ship and all the guests at the hotels and shopkeepers in Honolulu—blossoming out in some new Hawaiian creation every day. She is a pretty buxom girl that all the men all notice, so she had the time of her life—and I am glad, for she has cared for her invalid daughter 3-12 years old who was born without a hop sock-let. Her mother came to take care of her little girl while the mother-in-law gave her this wonderful trip. The trip would have been dull for Mr. Neill without her as they have had fun swimming and dancing, etc!.

We were up Friday morning feeling rested but the ocean was still rough. After breakfast we were off to the horse races and then the Hula class which is so entertaining. Mrs. Calhoun, that I told you about in the first part of the letter with her 15 pieces of luggage, came on board as brown as any Hawaiian. I wonder why she had so much luggage, she looks as tho she lived in her bathing suit. She won first prize in Hula dancing. She really is a marvelous dancer.

Daisy played canasta Friday p. m. while I was writing this diary, then came rushing in saying we had only ten minutes to dress for the Captain's party. Well, in the mad rush, I broke my beads and found I had gained so much I couldn't fasten the straps on my slippers. We arrived forty minutes early—some man at the canasta party had given her the incorrect time.

It was another gala occasion. Men in white coats and dark trousers and the women mostly all in formal dress. It was a beautiful party.

There are two hundred less passengers on the boat returning, some are flying back and others remaining for a longer vacation.

Party For Tour Conductor

Saturday we had our hair done, getting prettied up for the party we are giving Mr. Neill. After lunch our group of seven went up to the Polynesian room to hear Mr. Payne give a piano concert. He is a natural and we certainly enjoyed his playing.

Our tour group gave Mr. Neill a party in the Polynesian room, presenting him with a lovely silk robe. The ship furnished the appetizers and Mr. Payne the soft drinks. The party was a complete surprise to Mr. Neill—he being summoned by the Vagabond Court—held in the Matson Court of Bustus by eating. State of Satisfaction charged with wilfully seducing us away from our jobs, responsibilities and daily worries, which have been completely replaced by our wasting our time living the life of Riley. Also charged with destruction of any and all will power with regard to over eating, over sleeping, just plain worthless, shiftless, no good, etc. The Chief Steward and assistant arrested Mr. Neill and brought him up to the party, telling him the Matson people and Foster Tours would surely be embarrassed. Well, he was so nervous and shaken, but relieved when he found it was all a joke. You can just know who was behind that joke.

From there we went to the Captain's dinner which was another gala occasion. The decorations again were festive and beautiful. Baskets of mints made of flower icing of pansies, roses, sweet peas and daisies. I've never seen such artistic decorations in icing. Another K. C. Steak dinner. From there to the bingo room. I surely am unlucky—I picked a card I felt would win and on the third game, Mr. Payne said, "Let us change cards" and he won $75 on my card. I took it back next game and came one of winning the grand prize of $350. After that, the dance and then to bed.

Sunday—packing and visiting and church and picture show. These five days have gone so quickly and the joy of the calm sea the past two days has been so satisfying. How we wish you could all have taken this trip with us. It has been such a luxurious trip. Not restful, however, but everything for your comfort and pleasure. Every one so sweet and kind and solicitous.

Monday morning the inspectors arrive on board ship at 6 o'clock, and after inspection of passengers and luggage, we have a hurried breakfast and with farewells to the many friends we've made, we depart at 9 a. m., thankful for the perfect weather, the lack of all responsibilities on the trip and feeling so satisfied we had chosen the "Ask Mr. Foster" Tours with their most efficient tour conductor, Mr. Neill.

Need I say that we had so very much fun and the pleasant memories of our trip to Hawaii will be with us both in the years to come.

Local Rotary Club Reviews Its Accomplishments During 37 Years

Three Charter Members Still Living, Active in Club Work

As Rotary International observes the 50th anniversary of its founding, Harrisburg's own Rotary club is prompted to review its beginning and milestones of accomplishments during the past 37 years.

For, with more than 8,400 Rotary clubs holding charters throughout the world today, it is evident that Harrisburg's is one of the oldest in the world. The local group in receiving its charter No. 368 was among the first four hundred such groups organized.

Rotary's beginning in Harrisburg stems from the work of a former Baptist minister, Dr. A. E. Booth, who attended a Rotary gathering in Evansville and was so impressed with the idea that he returned to Harrisburg bound to establish a similar group here. This he did with the Evansville group as sponsoring organization.

Three charter members of the Harrisburg Rotary club are still living and two continue active in the club. They are Dennis B. McGhee, Harker Miley and Tom Gregg. The late Charles A. Taylor served as the club's first president with McGhee as secretary.

Taylor served three consecutive terms as president and then in 1921-22 the prominent Harrisburg man was named Rotary Governor of District 12 which in that day comprised the entire state. Although numerous men have served the local organization and Rotary well, none has assumed the stature of Mr. Taylor, who is still recognized as Harrisburg's Mr. Rotarian.

Harrisburg's Rotary club is often referred to as the Mother club of Little Egypt, for it has been the sponsoring club for numerous other Rotary groups. At one time, the local club held the unique distinction of having sponsored more new groups than any other club in the world.

During the 1920's, Harrisburg Rotarians helped organize nine such groups in southern Illinois, and it was not unusual for the club to charter a special train coach to haul them to a charter presentation, a convention or a district conference. Among the Rotary clubs which the local group has helped organized are Cairo, Carbondale, Mt. Vernon, Mt. Carmel, Du Quoin, Marion, Eldorado, Zeleville and Galesburg. This is only a few of the more than 20 which Harrisburg Rotarians have helped sponsor.

Through the years, several outstanding events have marked the history of Harrisburg Rotary. One of these was the conference of the 149th District held here in May of 1938. This big Rotary affair brought numerous Rotarians to the city from throughout the area. Russell Malan was serving as president of the local club at that time.

And in 1943 the club observed its 25th anniversary under the leadership of W. J. (Jim) O'Neil. O'Neil later became District Governor of the 149th Rotary district in 1948-49, marking the first time the honor was conferred on a Harrisburg man since Mr. Taylor's tenure.

Two disastrous fires have cost the club irreparable losses in the way of records. The first, a fire which consumed the First Trust and Savings company in the second year of the club's operation, swept away the early record and charter. The second fire loss came this year when the Junior high school burned, taking with it many records maintained by the present secretary, Louie Beltz.

The local Rotary group has been active community-wise,

Rotary Convention

Rotary's world-wide Golden Anniversary observance will culminate with a great convention in Chicago, May 29-June 2, where many thousands of Rotarians from most of the countries of the free world will re-dedicate themselves to Rotary's motto of "Service Above Self."

too, having sponsored and assisted with numerous civic projects throughout the 37 years of its organization. At one time it took the lead in directing a boys summer program, continuing it over a period of years. It assisted in bringing the township park and swimming pool into reality, has promoted and assisted with numerous drives for the betterment of the community and its citizens and has continually worked for better government and better schools. The group still sponsors annually a music award presented to the top HTHS musician, recognition of honor students, and a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

Today, Harrisburg's Rotary club consists of 34 members. But the men in this community, who have been active in the club's program at some time in the past, numbers many more. All have had a part in "the great adventure" and in making Harrisburg Rotary what it has been and what it is today.

Rotary Founded in 1905 Through Loneliness of Paul P. Harris

Out of the loneliness of one man grew a great adventure in fellowship which now flourishes around the world. The man was Paul P. Harris. The great adventure has been known as Rotary International.

Harris was 36, a lawyer and a bachelor when a plan for organizing a camaraderie took root in his mind 50 years ago.

Born in Racine, Wis., and reared in Wallingford, Vt., he attended the University of Iowa law school and roamed through the United States and Europe for five years before finally settling in Chicago.

Although he had business acquaintances, he pondered why they couldn't be both business associates and friends. He discussed the problem with three clients who also were comparative strangers in Chicago.

To Help Each Other

On the night of Feb. 23, 1905, the four men met in the small office of Gustavus Loehr, a mining engineer, in the Unity Building on Chicago's loop. The others were Sylvester Schiele, a coal merchant, and Hiram Shorey, a tailor.

Harris, a tall, spare, intense man, outlined his ideas for a club this way: "If businessmen could get together periodically, they could become better acquainted and, perhaps help each other obtain more business."

There would be a member for each type of business or profession to ensure a broad range of friendship.

It would be called the Rotary Club because the meetings would be held, in rotation, in the business places of the members. The Harris said later, "We found a cure for loneliness."

But presently they found that back-scratching friendship wasn't enough. They decided the club, in order to have purpose and direction, would have to perform services for the community.

For Better Life
Rotary thus became a service club — and the prototype of a dozen men's service club organizations which now have a total membership of about 1,300,000.

Rotary's aims, briefly put, include developing friendship, serving society, enlarging international understanding. Since Harris cast his bread upon the waters of friendship, it has floated far — and fast.

The second club was started in 1908 in San Francisco. A national association was set up in 1910, when there were 16 clubs, and the movement became international in 1912.

Mae Vinyard, Son, Daughter-in-Law Purchase Lynn Shop

Mrs. Mae Vinyard and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vinyard, recently bought and are operating the Lynn Shop on the North side of the square, formerly owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Geltsky who founded the business.

Mrs. Mae Vinyard has had much experience in the clothing business and was employed for several years in the alteration department at Harts, and at Myrons. She will be in charge of the shop with her daughter-in-law and son as assistants.

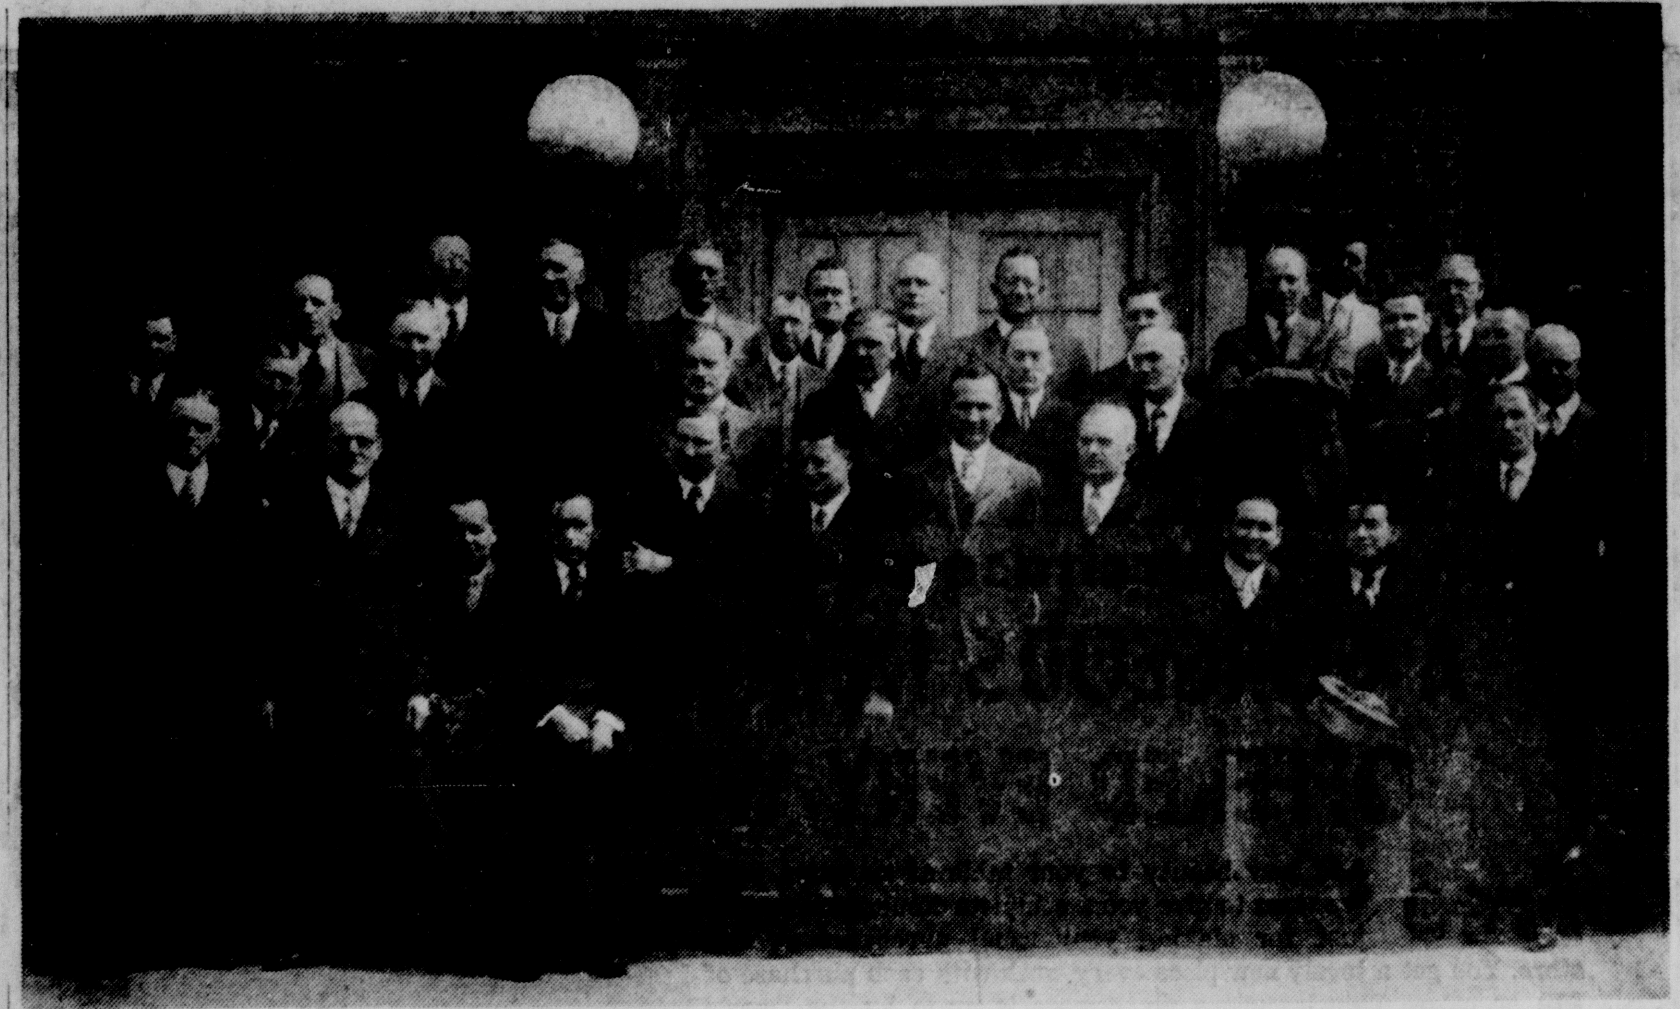

They plan to add to the line of infants' and children's wear carried by the Lynn Shop heretofore, the well known brands of Danny Dale, Jean Durain, and Joe Love, besides the Prissy Missie brand and expect to be fully stocked with sizes up to the pre-teen age.

The sale of the Lynn Shop was negotiated by Ertel Real Estate brokers, when Mrs. Geltsky decided to retire from business. Her husband is a well known billiard hall owner in this city.

The olive is considered civilization's oldest fruit.

Pfc. Thomas Davenport, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davenport, RFD 1 Carrier Mills, has completed a phase of the cold weather training exercises held by the 4th Infantry Division in Germany. Pfc. Davenport, a messenger in Company I of the division's 22nd Regiment, arrived overseas in June

WHEN HARRISBURG ROTARY CLUB observed the organization's 25th year of existence, these men were members of the group. Many are now deceased, some have moved from the community and others have ceased to be active in the club. Three are still active in membership. They are Scerial Thompson, George Davenport and Paul Halbersleben. Of the group, Thomas Gregg is the only charter member still living. Pictured on the front row (left to right)—Dr. J. V.
